VIDEO GAMES

Build your own game. Hands-on.

Nine Thursdays of cardboard, blocks, and craft supplies. Kids design a character, build a game world, act out enemy AI rules, and invent a three-phase boss. The AI behind real games is what they learn. Ends with Game Launch Day.

WHAT THEY ACTUALLY DO

- Build a 3D game character out of craft supplies and give it a power
- Design a level with obstacles, a path, and a goal, then walk each other's worlds
- Play the enemy: follow an if-then rule card, then write rules of their own
- Photograph their builds and watch an AI try to guess what game it's looking at
- Launch Day: gallery walk, awards, and a Game Designer certificate

$275

for all nine weeks
(about $30 a session)

15 students maximum.
5 students minimum to run.

Kids are never on devices. Ever.

No tablets, no laptops, no accounts. Kids build with their hands. Three times all session, the instructor puts a photo of their builds on the projector and the class watches an AI try to make sense of it. That is the only screen in the room, and no child touches it.
